CAFÉ STYLE DRINKS FIND A PERFECT HOME IN BORMIOLI ROCCO THERMAL GLASSWARE

Hot Drink Line Expands To Include Specialized Mugs

New York City (Spring, 2009) – The best way to enjoy a creamy cup of Italian hot chocolate, espresso or cappuccino is to drink it from a glass mug, making it as enticing for the eye as it is for the taste buds. Bormioli Rocco, leading Italian glassware manufacturer since 1825, expands its popular Hot Drink collection to include a specialized Dea Hot Chocolate Cup and continues its successful Rondò and Oslo collections of glass coffee and teacups.

Made of Borosilicate glass, all of these collections are made to withstand high temperatures and thermal shock, and can be used in the microwave or dishwasher. These types of glasses are frequently found in Italian cafes and restaurants for serving top quality drinks and desserts.

DEA

Distinctly Italian in design, Dea expands to include a 12.25 oz Hot Chocolate Cup. The cup offers a unique shape that allows for luscious whipped cream to sit atop the chocolate. The Hot Chocolate Cup joins a 33.75 oz Tea Pot with Infuser and matching 16 oz Mug. The teapot is safe to heat directly on electric burners while offering refined brewing through its internal glass infuser, and the matching mug is a perfect size for a large cup of tea.

RONDÒ

The Rondò glassware collection elevates the everyday coffee and tea routine to something to be savored - while also being the perfect accompaniment to elegant after dinner gatherings and leisurely Sunday brunches. Rondò thermal glass cups feature exaggerated round shapes that are pleasing to behold, and rest on striking stainless steel saucers. Rondò is available in 4, 8.5 and 15.25 oz cup sizes.
